

International Society of Endocrinology

Promoting international cooperation and scientific exchange in Endocrinology

isendo.org

The International Society of Endocrinology is a non-profit organisation founded in 1960.

Since our foundation, we have pursued worldwide advancement of education, science and patient care in endocrinology.

Become an ISE Member or Partner

Join our global network of more than 80 national member societies representing over 40,000 health professionals around the world!

ISE unites the global endocrinology community to facilitate international cooperation between our member organisations and stakeholders. We provide virtual and live platforms to disseminate knowledge and research, and to bridge gaps in education.

Partnerships & Joint Activities

ISE actively seeks to collaborate with other regional endocrine societies, international organisations, patient groups and sister societies to advance its mission.

We work with our partners on specific projects that are commonly defined and include, but are not limited to: Education, Advocacy, Early Career and much more! Reach out to us if you are interested in partnership opportunities.

ISE Member Benefits

By joining ISE, societies and individual members become eligible for the following benefits:

- ✓ Discount for ISE Congresses and Events
- ✓ Early career travel grants scheme for attendance at ISE international meetings
- ✓ Networking opportunities
- ✓ Promotion of your society activities to a global network via our communication channels
- ✓ Access to accredited educational materials through our Global Education Hub
- ✓ Opportunity to apply for endorsement and support for your local meetings and more!

Our Vision

We are working together to achieve optimised
